I have always believed it is important to not only talk the talk, but to walk the walk when it came to teaching my children. I have tried to accomplish this throughout the past 23 years ofIt is not always what we did but often what we did not do , that our children pay attention to. My daughter was very proud of me when I graduated with mycollege degree last year. It got her thinking of going back to school herself. The very same week my promotion at work was announced , my 23-year-old daughteras a full-time student at a local New Hampshire state college. As soon as my daughter realized the opportunity offered to me as a direct result of myaccomplishments , she realized there was no reason she had to wait until her mid-life for the same opportunities. No matteryour age is, a degree will open doors, present opportunities and offer new and exciting.....I will not be surprised to find myself working for my daughter in 5-10 years !

To my daughter Brittany ; I am grateful you have made different life decisions than I. You willin your academic pursuits and enjoy the benefits of your education for a

Like many other definitions , lifelong learning is also defined as the process of keeping one's body and mind (confined/ assessed / engaged) at any age by actively pursuing knowledge and experience . Many East Africans need this aspect in ensuring that their skills are up-to-date with the (ever / every/never) changing needs of the society. (Unless /if /when) they are to catch up with the digital (time/ place /pace) , then life long learning goes along way into improving their (adept/ inspiration / memory) , increasing self-confidence , offering an (innovative/inexpensive/conventional) way to try something ,and helping them to meet people (whom / whose/who) share their interests . In that sense , life can be more rewarding experience and most especially the avenues (for/to/by) attaining knowledge are clearer and open with the advent of information and communication technology.
